Interdisciplinary Support for High-Intensity Needs in Education (iSHINE)

iSHINE is a specialized training program for graduate students interested in working with K-12 children with disabilities who have “high-intensity” needs (i.e., multiple or significant disabilities) as members of interdisciplinary teams in school settings.

Who Can Apply?

Students admitted to the ASU graduate school in one of the following programs are invited to apply:

- Speech-Language Pathology
- Special Education
- Reading Education

Priority consideration will be given to applications received by April 15, 2020.

Benefits of Participation

- Interdisciplinary practicum experiences with K-12 students who have high intensity needs
- Specialized seminars on topics such as interdisciplinary service delivery, language and communication, assistive technology, literacy, and behavior management
- $8,400 stipend (total across two semesters)
- Graduate tuition waiver for two semesters
- Travel funding

Visit the iSHINE website or contact the following iSHINE faculty for more information:

Dr. Emily Lakey: lakeyer@appstate.edu (Speech-Language Pathology)

Dr. Aftynne Cheek: cheekae1@appstate.edu (Special Education and Reading Education)

Visit the iSHINE website or contact the following iSHINE faculty for more information:

The contents of this flyer were developed under a grant funded through the US Department of Education, #H325K170062. However, those contents do not necessarily represent the policy of the US Department of Education, and you should not assume endorsement by the Federal Government (Project Officer: Julia Martin Elle). iSHINE is a collaboration between the Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders and the Department of Reading Education and Special Education through the Beaver College of Health Sciences Institute for Health and Human Services at Appalachian State University.